School board goes with 4% tax hike

By Josh Shepherd, News writer

After nearly three hours of public comment last Wednesday night in the Harrison County Schools administrative office, the school board approved the administration's request for a four percent revenue increase in its local tax rate.

The increase from 45.3 cents to 47.1 cents will raise school revenues by approximately $180,000 and impose an additional $20 on property taxes for every $100,000 of assessed value.

The Harrison County School Board has raised its rates to the maximum of four percent revenues for the last three consecutive years. The public meeting is required when a taxing district proposes to raise revenues above the compensating rate.

The public meeting last week attracted a crowd of approximately 70 people including several dozen school district employees and leaders.

Before comments were opened to the public, Julie Asher, finance director for Harrison County Schools, outlined the 2014 budget proposal, including the school's planned spending for the next fiscal year.

Amid some technical difficulty with the public address system and revenue tables broadcast by television monitor, Asher explained that the state's compensating rate for Harrison County would add only $15,855 in revenues.

However, that increase would not cover many of the school's anticipated costs for the 2014-15 fiscal year, Asher said. She went on to say that the Harrison School district has one of the lowest tax rates compared to most of the school districts in the surrounding area.

In fact, she said, Harrison is in the lowest third, 137, of all 173 school districts in the state with regard to its local tax rates.

The funding formula for schools in the state is not favorable to Harrison County, she argued.

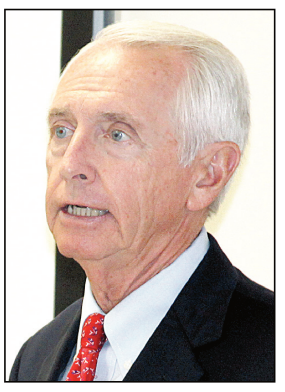

"We sit at in the middle position between Kentucky's wealthiest and poorest counties," she said. There are just enough resources that keep Harrison from qualifying for additional supports and assistance. But there has been practically zero population growth or increases in property values,

More cooks needed for BBQ Cook Off

The annual Harrison County Barbecue Cook-Off is looking for a few more cooks, said Karen Adams, chair of Champions for a Drug Free Harrison County.

The Harrison County Barbecue Cook-Off, the major fund raising event of Champions, is set this year for Saturday, Oct. 11 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

But as of its last planning meeting, there were only two signed up to compete. Perennial favorites Alex Barnett and the Elks Lodge, both of whom are also ardent Champions supporters.

Nevertheless, the organizations members, which include Cynthiana Police Chief Ray Johnson, Harrison County Sheriff Shain Stephens and Judge David Melcher, are con-

Children's Classic to be presented on Rohs stage

Charlotte's Web is more than a production for kids

Sophie Bolin will play Fern.

By Josh Shepherd, News writer

By all accounts, Charlotte's Web, the upcoming production from the Rohs Theater Company, should be "some play."

But theater goers should not mistake the production of this classic story as "children's theater," said Shelley Slade, the play's director.

Charlotte's Web has been an enduring story because it appeals to adults as well as children. Particularly among people who are familiar with growing up in small towns, she added.

Many people are already familiar with the story. It is a staple of most elementary education classrooms, even 60 years after it was originally published.

But teaching it in classrooms today is as much a lesson in history as it is a resource to teach children to read.

"In the book, Fern's brother, Avery, goes to school carrying a slingshot and a wooden toy gun. The children can't believe he gets away with doing that," Slade said. "It has given us [teachers] a chance to teach our kids about small town life back in the 1950s."

Because of its value in education, the Rohs Theater Company recently held a "Go Fund Me" campaign to raise money for elementary school children to attend a special showing of the play.

The theater company extends a special thank you to Farmers National Bank for its donation that will bring a free production of the play to all second and third grade students in Harrison County.

The play is arguably the most ambitious production

Harrison County Volunteer Fire Chief Charles Allen Carson read The Fireman's Prayer during Thursday morning's dedication ceremony of the Harrison County 9/11 memorial. The dedication was the culmination of many hours of work for the firefighters, the Harrison County Fire Protection District board and secretary. Firefighters for Cynthiana and Harrison County as well as Search and Rescue are standing under one of two tents set up to avoid Thursday's downpour. Cynthiana Police and Harrison County sheriff and deputies were under the second.

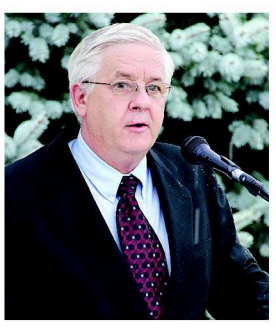

State Rep. Tom McKee, left, Chief Charles Allen Carson, center and Barry Snapp, president of the Harrison Fire District, received a proclamation declaring Sept. 11, 2014, as Emergency Responders Day in Harrison Count. The firefighters and Fire Tax Board were also recognized for the dedication to getting the memorial erected.

Mary Withers, Chief Charles Allen Carson, Barry Snapp, chairman, Mark Patrick, vice chairman, James McCarty, treasurer, Charles Parsons Jr., member, Debbie Peark, bookkeeper.

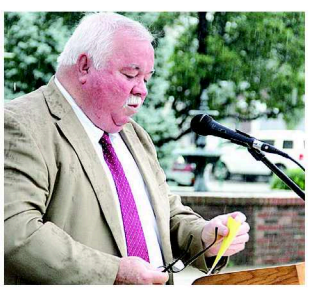

Jamie Eubanks sang The National Anthem to open the ceremony.

Chairman Barry Snapp opened the program.

Harrison County Judge-Executive Alex Barnett talked about the impact of 9/11 on Harrison Countians.

Cynthiana Mayor Steve Moses asked for those who gave their lives to be remembered.

Members of Cynthiana's Fire Department reacted to the playing of Taps by Bill Selin.

About 75 guests braved the rain Thursday to witness the unveiling of the 9/11 Memorial pedestal which was set Wednesday night by the Ware family.

leader.

One of the bills will provide $1.2 million in funding that will enable food banks to purchase surplus produce from farmers that will, in turn, be provided free of charge to needy Kentucky families, Beshear said.

The other bill will allow farmers to remove wildlife from farms if they are damaging crops.

Basically, he explained, farmers can protect their crops from damage by grazing deer, even outside of hunting season.

But instead of letting the meat go to waste, farmers may donate the wildlife to butchers for processing and distribution to families through local food banks.

"Both these bills protect farmers and provide an important food resource for Kentucky's neediest families," Beshear said.

In comments supporting the legislation, McKee said that he was honored to do what he could to support farmers and Kentucky agriculture.

"It is a special blessing to accomplish that goal while at the same time supporting the effort to provide good foods to families in need," McKee said.

Sharing in the celebration of the signing of these bills into law were Tunya Adams of Hope's Helping Hands in Cynthiana, an agency member of God's Pantry; Margaret Watson, a director of the Harrison County Food Pantry; Marian Guinn, CEO of God's Pantry Food Bank; Tamara Sandberg, executive director of the Kentucky Association of Food Banks; and Jeff Harper of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation.

fident that there will be enough participants for a proper contest when the day of the event arrives.

"We appreciate the enormous commitment of time and food into this event. It is expensive for them to supply the meat for this event. But it all goes to a very good cause," Adams said.

In addition to the barbecue, Champions will be holding a silent auction during the event to help raise funds for the organizations grass roots campaigns against drug abuse in the community.

Any donations of items for the silent auction would be appreciated. And those donations can count as a tax deduction for individuals and businesses, Adams said.

Those who would like to throw themselves into the ring and show off their barbecue recipes are encourages to contact Adams at either 859-234-0026 or 859-234-3902.

Looking ahead, Champions is also planning its annual community meeting in November to update people on drug abuse and how local people can take a stand in their own communities.

Look for details later in the month about the community meeting.

yet attempted on the Rohs Opera House stage, Slade said. "We have tried very hard to make this show a visual spectacle."

Unlike productions of Charlotte's Web that Slade has seen produced at the Lexington Children's Theater or the Lexington Opera House, the costumes for the barnyard characters will include some prosthetics on the actors.

The costume designs created by Katelyn Chanslor are outstanding. "She [Katelyn] has done a phenomenol job with the budget we had to work with," Slade said.

The production is also pushing the envelope in terms of lighting and set design as well.

"Most productions are content to have a barn background and the action takes place on the outside. But we wanted something more immersive," Slade said.

Most of the action will take place within the barn and the set appears to reach fairly high into the theater.

But the visual spectacle aside, the actors have taken to their roles.

Of particular note is young Sophie Bolin who was cast in the role of Fern.

"Sophie was the first person to show up for auditions and she has been a natural. She takes direction well and has made herself at home in the theater," said Slade.

She has been given a great deal of support from David Bowen, who plays Wilbur the Pig, and Marie Bowen who portrays Charlotte the Spider.

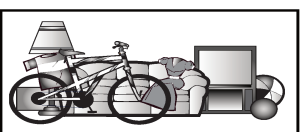

There will be several other young people making their Rohs Opera House debut. Included among them will be Judge Executive Alex Barnett as the carnival barker.

Barnett has one line.

Charlotte's Web will run Thursday through Sunday, Sept. 25 - 28 at Rohs Opera House. Showtimes are at 7:30 p.m. except for Sunday when the matinee will start at 2 p.m.

Tickets are $10 each and are available at Biancke's restaurant.

The Thursday night performance will be Friends of the Rohs night for members.

Public weigh-in should be taken seriously

Josh Shepherd
News Writer

Almost three weeks before the public meeting on the school's proposed budget last Wednesday, I was at the Harrison County schools central office with Superintendent Andy Dotson, Assistant Superintendent David Case and Finance Director Julie Asher taking notes concerning the budget proposal for the 2013-14 school year.

I'm certain that details of the proposal had already been shared with members of the Harrison County School Board.

That's to be expected.

The discussion we had covered many of the same points that Asher stated in her opening presentation at the public meeting.

One can nitpick the presentation. The public address system had technical difficulties, the charts Asher referenced on the television monitor were dim and out of focus.

But in the year in which I have covered the school, I do not doubt about the ability and competence of the school administration to present and defend its annual budget proposal, regardless of its popularity with the public.

Furthermore, I have little trouble with school employees, who also happen to be county property owners, lending their voices of support to that budget.

But I did have a problem with the second opening presentation that evening when School Board Chair Kristy Carey took the podium and presented arguments in defense of the administration's proposal before anyone else had a chance to speak.

While it's good to know that the school board trusts and supports Dotson's leadership, it is not the board's role in a public hearing to contribute to the administration's arguments.

That's like a jury foreman making the prosecution's closing argument at the end of a lawsuit.

Carey may have been well within her right to make that presentation, and I doubt that the administration had any objection, but it was not appropriate in the context of this meeting.

Board members, by virtue of the fact that they are in elected positions, have an implicit obligation — at these meetings especially — to avoid even the appearence of bias.

It is critical that they project a sense, at least, that they are listening to the objections of voters.

Otherwise, they give a strong foundation to the criticism voiced by more than one person that evening that there is a lack of transparency between the board and the community.

It fosters an adversarial relationship where none should exist.

Rather than the board chair making those opening comments, they would have been better coming from Dotson himself. And for appearences sake, and out of respect for the position of the board as arbiter between the administration and the public, it would have been wise that he not have taken his traditional seat among the board members at the meeting.

Hindsight, however, is 20/20.

The final comments by the board I have less trouble criticizing. One hopes, however, that the "due diligence" that Ed Taylor declared had already been done by the board included input from voters in their respective precincts.

Had I a stake in the debate, however, I would have argued that insurance coverage to all students probably should be "on the table."

It's a nice gesture to provide that coverage, worthy of applause, especially when families had few alternatives for insurance coverage.

But health insurance coverage is the law now and Kentucky has KYNECT, the on-line health insurance marketplace for low income families. Unlike the debacle at the federal level, KYNECT launched successfully last October.

Open enrollment begins on Nov. 15. The school's efforts may be best used toward sponsoring a weekend to help eligible families buy affordable health plans based on their income rather than paying a high premium insurance plan for every student.

That being said, I'm not critical of the final result.

Where there is a taxing district, there will come a time when a board will vote to raise them. And for segments of the population, that vote will never be popular.

Over the year I have become familiar with Dotson's leadership and the school's administration. The central office is blessed to have very bright people who care deeply about the success of the school system and a vision for its continued progress.

A clear sign of good leadership are people with a vision. I believe Harrison County Schools has such leadership.

But there is another aspect to that equation. People with vision must be tempered by a board concerned with the organization's financial health.

There is a critical balance that needs to be achieved between the vision and the practical means to achieve it.

For me, that is an essential function of the school board: to provide that level of oversight and to convey to its stakeholders that proper care is being taken to ensure that the vision does not reach beyond its means.

Tax increase needs more specifics

To the editor:

As a relatively recent resident of Harrison County, I attended yesterday's (10 Sep) School Board meeting with great interest. While unfortunately I could not stay for the entire meeting, I was very impressed at the strong turnout representing an engaged community.

My wife and I have three children in the Harrison County Schools, so we have a strong interest in how the schools are resourced and, as taxpayers, how effectively those resources are utilized and whether the board effectively sought alternatives to tax increases to accomplish their mission.

That is where I believe there is concern in the community. To many, it feels as if the full tax increase is assumed, with little to no attempt to identify viable alternatives and with little acknowledgement of the impact on the community as a whole, particularly those with few resources.

The finance presentation did an excellent job outlining the overall spending by the School System and in my opinion did a good job illustrating that by comparative metrics with the state as a whole the Harrison County Schools are getting value for the level of taxation levied. That said, it still provided information at too macro of a level.

There was no articulation of which specific programs or activities would be reduced depending in the taxation level chosen: base, compensating or the taxes increased 4%. I think that information is what is owed to the community; I know it was what I was looking for.

I managed budgets for the U.S. Air Force over my 22 year career and I know I owed my leadership that kind of information. I could not approach them with a general statement regarding what the program spends resources on and then say "by the way I need more money." I had to present what specific activities would be curtailed without additional resources. If I didn't present these elements, there was no way I would get those resources.

I have to have an understanding of the tradeoffs my board members was faced within that vote. We don't need a litany of the entire school budget, but we did need a summary of those specific elements affected by the different resource levels.

That is the only way I as a voter can hold my Board member accountable for decisions he makes. That information should have been available at the fingertips of any board member, otherwise they are not making decision based on real trade-offs, only based on a gut feeling of what the schools "need."

You may think from this letter I was fundamentally against the increase, I was not. Education is a key element to the prosperity of the community and providing quality education should be one of the guiding principles of the local government. I am fundamentally against an increase when I have no specificity of why the increase is required, and there is where the board and district failed.

Reader supports James Smith

To the editor:

I cannot stress to you enough the importance of the upcoming local election. Our town desperately needs to elect leaders with a vision for our future.

Please vote for James Smith as Mayor!

As the grandson of Weber Davis, former Harrison County Sheriff, he learned early in life what positive local leadership meant. He has continued to prove his leadership and forward thinking approach with the success of his local business, the Rohs Opera House.

He is President of the Chamber of Commerce and also serves on various local boards. In short, he is already a leader in our community. He knows what we need and he has a 5, 10, and 20 year plan to get us back on the right track.

From the condition of the buildings to the lack of businesses, we are just steps away from drying up and blowing away. We must elect James Smith, a forward thinking leader who will make positive changes! If you vote for the same people you have always voted for, don't be surprised if we have four more years of what we have had for the last 20. Please vote with your head and not out of some well intentioned loyalty.

Both candidates are upstanding citizens. However, James Smith is the one with a vision and a plan to move our town forward. Vote for James Smith. Vote for CHANGE!

Sincerely,
Susan Davisson

More support for Heather Fryman

To the editor:

As a family, we would like to announce our support of Heather Fryman for Family Court Judge.

We have known Heather as a student, friend and now a neighbor. She was a responsible, exceptional student, and she is an honest and fair adult. As a friend, she has selflessly helped us on numerous occasions. We couldn't ask for a nicer neighbor and know we can call on her at any time. But what do these attributes have to do with her race for Family Court Judge? They speak for the person Heather Fryman is and her depth of character.

Professionally, Heather is an experienced litigator; she has worked in Family Court, and for over seven years, she has been part of the Office of the Attorney General in Frankfort. As Family Court Judge, Heather will carefully evaluate each case and rule appropriately. We need Heather Fryman on the bench.

New viruses invading our borders

To the editor:

According to Lauren Blackwell, DO, "There is always a spike of colds when school opens and throughout the fall."

I can't help but laugh at the absurdity.

Is there anyone, anywhere, willing to speak on behalf of its own citizens? Anyone?

Here's the facts.

T.B and other respiratory illnesses that hail from South America are pouring in through the border. This administration doesn't disclose what cities are hosting them nor the names of the schools these kids are enrolled in.

They don't tell us how many of them are sick and with what illnesses. And yet, cheerleaders for the liberal establishment continue to say everythings o.k.

And don't forget that this administration made the decision to bring ebola back to U.S and send U.S troops to ebola hot zones.

AGAIN, I ask, anyone?

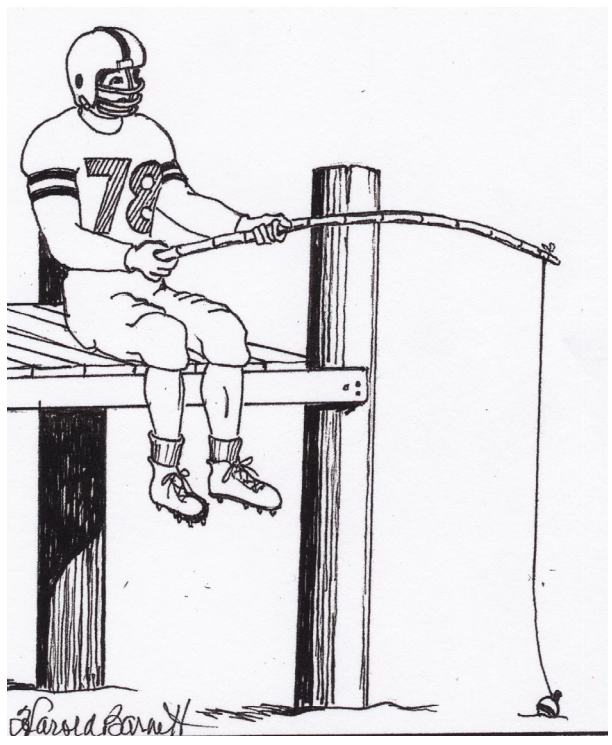

Bottom line, we should really be afraid at the state this country has become. That political correctness and fear of being called racists, has trumped the health and safety of its own people.

School board

she added.

Costs to operate the school system continue to rise, she said, but there has not been a corresponding population increase that would enable a compensating rate to cover those increasing costs, she said.

On the heels of Asher's presentation, board chair Kristy Carey addressed the standing-room-only audience.

She said that the school board members do not seek to raise property taxes every year. Beginning in the late summer when tax rates are released by the state, there is a genuine effort to avoid tax increases, which is one reason Harrison County is in the bottom third of school district taxing in the state.

However, their decision to approve the budget is based on the needs of 3,000 plus Harrison County School students.

"If Harrison County is to move forward, we must have an educated, career-ready workforce," she said. "As board members, our first priority is to provide a school system that is safe. We must also keep pace with technologies and educational tools that will prepare our children for careers that are just now being developed."

Concluding her opening statement, the podium was opened for public comment.

Don Ruberg, attorney for the Harrison County School Board, moderated the proceedings.

Everyone requesting time to address the school board was given an opportunity to speak. They were limited to five minutes apiece to make a statement, but there would be no demonstrations of support or disagreement with speakers. Furthermore, participants were reminded that the hearing was not a question and answer session.

The podium was reserved for statements only, he stated.

The majority of speakers were selected in random order, Ruberg said, but the first few had requested to be placed first because of personal time constraints.

Danny Tolson, who was first to speak, touched on a point that would be common among the budget proposal's critics.

Many county residents live paycheck to paycheck, he said. A lot of working people don't get pay raises every year, but the cost of living keeps going up on them.

"Food goes up, gas goes up. Taxes on the state and national level are eating us alive. Local community taxes just adds to the burden," Tolson said.

Cynthiana businessman Avi Bear discusses the 4% tax increase with Harrison County School Board member Gary Dearborn.

Darwin Root, retired CEO of Harrison Memorial Hospital (HMH), expressed concern that the school board was not operating with transparency.

Root was among several local leaders who sat down with Superintendent Andy Dotson, Assistant Superintendent David Case and Asher prior to the public meeting to discuss the school's budget proposal.

Roots said he appreciated the board's difficult job but he also cautioned its members to consider their decision carefully. "You are accountable to the community ... approving this budget may gain $180,000, but it may cost you community support," he said.

Chuck Duffy, former CFO of the hospital, added his own critique of the budget. He understood the difficulty of managing the school's finances, but as with any efficient operation, if the revenue stream sags, cuts have to be made.

"At HMH, our people took pay cuts to get through. Employees even suggested ways to save expenses," Duffy said. He urged the administration to operate within its revenues rather than levy taxes every year.

Local business owners Avi Bear and Sonny Spicer both said that taxes were making it increasingly difficult to remain in business for themselves. Bear, who has served as a board member of the Maysville Community and Technical College System, urged board members to recognize that Harrison County was still in hard economic times.

"It's not just the cost of my property tax. Businesses have to cover the expenses of running a business in addition to the taxes we pay out," Bear read in a prepared statement. He urged the board to consider taking only the compensating rate.

John Chamberlin, pastor of Faith Baptist Church, talked about local fear concerning what the board can do to the community. He suggested that many of the school employees present at the public meeting were there because "they were strongly encouraged to be there."

He also commented that there might have been many others present to dispute the budget proposal, but that there was a feeling on the part of community members he talked too that protesting "would do no good."

Chamberlin expressed a concern that the board's relationship with the community was "adversarial rather than supportive."

Several making comments expressed skepticism that there was no room in the existing budget to make cuts of some kind. Suggestions were to purchase cheaper used school buses to transport students, make tough choices on temporary layoffs or cuts in hourly employees' time.

School employees did make up the majority of Harrison County residents who spoke in support of the tax increase. To a person, they all disputed Chamberlin's accusation of coercion.

Steven Fowler, principal of Southside Elementary, expressed concern that people may be viewing Harrison County as if it existed in a bubble.

"I have seen jobs and profitable industries leave this community. We need to stop this cycle," he argued.

When times get more difficult, investing deeper into education is the first step toward halting the area's economic spiral downward, he said.

Adding their voice to his arguments, principals B. J. Maggard and John Hoskins talked about the increasing educational needs of students.

"Half of the jobs that our elementary students will compete for have not even been invented yet," Hoskins said.

Many from the school system testified to the personal investments they have put into the effort to educate children in Harrison County.

"I have seen many of our teachers paying for supplies out of their own pockets. They pay the tax on their property and then add their own to the mix," commented Jenny Lynn Hatter, supervisor of instruction.

Many reported that there is nothing in the school's budget that is wasted. Even with additional revenues, teachers and administrators are doing what they can, and giving what they can, to provide students the best education it possible can.

Other teachers said that their dedication to Harrison County has led them to turn down offers for higher pay at larger schools. They did so because they believe in the direction that Harrison County Schools are moving.

Some pointed to the increasing mandates from the Kentucky Department of Education to invest in new and expensive technology as contributing to the costs of operating a school. Fowler pointed to the emphasis of attending to the emotional as well as the academic needs of his students.

"I don't have just one, but several students afflicted with seizure disorders. We need the medical personnel available to attend to them if they have an episode. Things have changed a lot since I was a student," Fowler said.

People who came to comment represented a broad range of ages. Perhaps one of the more poignant comments came from Thelma Crawford, a graduate of the Banneker School and worker in the Harrison County Senior Citizens Center.

She said that she was concerned for the senior citizens who wait until the end of the month to pay bills because their monthly checks just don't stretch that far.

"Prices are just so sky high for everyone. If you pass this increase, we'll find a way to pay it. But I am against it [the increase]," she said.

In all, there were 26 people who made comment in the hearing. Of those, the majority of speakers, 15, were not school system employees.

Before voting in favor of the increase, board members were given an opportunity to comment.

Gary Dearborn and Mary June Brunker read prepared statements while Gary Lizer, Ed Taylor and Carey spoke candidly about their decision.

To a person, they each stated that their vote was based on the needs of Harrison County students. They stressed the importance that education plays in turning around a community's economic setbacks.

Taylor admitted his mind was made up prior to the public meeting. "We have done our due diligence in researching the budget. This is not a decision to be made in just one hour. It takes weeks.

"If I am given other information, I'm not above changing my mind," he said, but he would require evidence before je would support it.

In terms of a budget, Taylor said there were certain items that were not "on the table."

He listed school safety, particularly the safety of school buses. He would not vote to put children on used buses that may put them at risk or compromise their well-being at the very least.

"Our old buses are stripped down and used for parts. Nothing goes to waste," Taylor said.

The board long ago agreed to provide school supplies to every child in the schools. It's a good program and it's something that should continue, Taylor argued.

The board also foots the bill for insurance coverage on all students, not just the athletes, Taylor said. "For some families, that may be their only insurance. It's an expense I think we need to maintain."

Concluding the evening, Dotson addressed the concern that the board and administration acted without transparency.

"I have never shied away from meeting anyone and talking about the school's budget or any of the concerns people have," Dotson said.

He was also critical of the rumor given voice during the meeting that teachers or school leaders were intimidated into attending and supporting the tax increase.

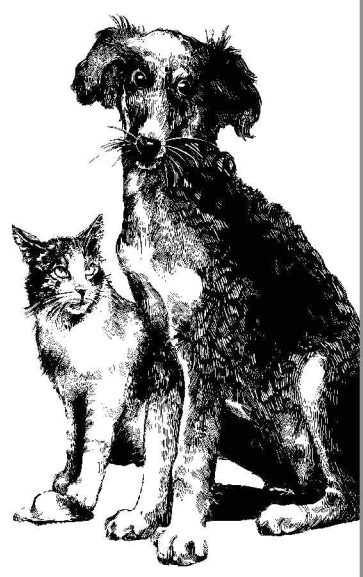

"No one is here because they were required to be here," he stated. "They're property owners and taxpayers with a genuine wish to support the efforts of the school system."

At the conclusion of the meeting, the board voted unanimously to keep the motor vehicle tax the same at 50 cents per $100 and increase property tax to 47.2 cents per $100 of assessed value.

Preening the garden

Jeneen Wiche
Columnist
www.SwallowRailFarm.com

All in all we have had a decent summer with reasonable temperatures and adequate rainfall. I think the marker for the summer of 2014 can go to the weeds!

So as you address some fall weeding chores you may also want to do a little preening to give some of your annuals and perennials a facelift for fall.

As we descend into fall, annuals and perennials will rebound but first we need to get rid of the old, ragged growth.

Several gardeners have told me they have given up on the season and thrown out their annual containers. I understand the urge, but if you deadhead spent blooms and cut back annuals they will put on new, lush growth.

A dose of water-soluble fertilizer will help with growth, color and additional bloom sets.

In a matter of a couple of weeks it will look like you have a whole new set of containers to enjoy.

Herbaceous perennials will also respond to some late summer pruning. Leave those coming into bloom, like golden rods, aster, mums and helianthus; but go ahead and clean up the perennials that have finished blooming or those inclined to repeat bloom throughout the season.

I regularly clean up perennial geraniums, salvias, eryngiums, gaillardia, knautia and others so they continue to bloom all summer.

Others simply benefit from having diseased or damaged foliage removed for aesthetics in the garden.

Take note that I am referring to annuals and perennials in the garden and not woody shrubs and trees. I do not recommend any clean-up of woodies (unless the wood is dead) at this point, it is too late in the summer season to attend to these matters.

Instead I advise waiting to do any of these chores until after several hard frosts and dormancy has occurred. Pruning woodies too early in the fall may result in new growth that will be killed by frost; plus, this year plants are under stress due to drought conditions so encouraging new growth will only add to an already stressful situation.

The traditional hedging shrubs like taxus, boxwood and hollies should be left alone for now as well. Wait until several hard frosts occur, then you can shape them up for winter.

The rush to mulch is usually something we think about in the spring of the year but consider tackling this chore now.

A 2-inch layer of mulch, if it is not already there, will help cut down on weeds and moderate soil moisture. Be sure not to pile mulch too high or around the base of the plant's stem or trunk.

We don't want to rot a root crown or in the case of woody plants or trees we always want to see the natural flare of the trunk. We do not want to see what looks like a telephone pole sticking out of the ground.

Remove the suckers from the base and branches of sucker prone trees. Suckers will compete for resources from the parent tree and if these trees are under stress we certainly don't want to add insult to injury. Suckers are unsightly but they are also competition. Crabapples are most notable in this regard!

And, finally, get those summer weeds under control. Controlling weeds now and preventing flowering and seed production will go far in overall weed management. Prevent late summer seeding and you prevent next year's annual weed crop.

If nothing else, deadhead anything about to set seed; pull the easy stuff after a rain; and use spot treatments of a total kill herbicide to kill your hard to control perennial weeds like poke and dandelion if you must.

Many late summer perennial weeds are most effectively controlled during their fall growth cycle because they are trying to store energy before winter. This means they will take in the herbicide more efficiently.

For continued control you can use corn gluten pre-emergent products to safely prevent weed seed from germinating. The corn gluten products also provide small amounts of nitrogen which will benefit the desirable plants in the garden.

Woman's Club holds September luncheon

The Woman's Club of Harrison County met Friday, Sept. 12 at Hospice of the Bluegrass to open the 2014-2015 season.

Anna Ruth McLoney, president, welcomed members and guests then led the Pledge of Allegiance. McLoney called for a minute of silence to commemorate the anniversary of the 9/11 attacks and to honor all the men and women who serve our country.

English Tea Party was the theme of the luncheon. The ladies wore their finest hats. The tables were decorated with china tea cups and saucers and floral arrangements of hydrangeas. Layne Tussey catered the meal. Regular and spiced teas were served. Tussey prepared several different varieties of finger foods and desserts. Prior to the meal, Bonnie Teater offered the blessing.

Teater presented spiritual values to the members by asking us to take the "T" test. Personality, honesty, accountability, adversity, generosity, unity, humility and hospitality are the valued traits we need to live life to the fullest and have a positive impact on the lives of others.

Cheryl Case introduced speaker and musical guest Bill Probus and his wife Ann. He provided members with songbooks he had divided into several categories. Songs My Mother Taught Me, Songs I Learned in Camp, Songs of Love and Heartbreak, Saturday Afternoon at the Movies and Patriotic Songs We Love to Sing About America. Members sang along as he played the piano.

It was a wonderful and uplifting musical presentation and the members were delighted to have Probus and his wife join us for the luncheon.

Following the program, Kaye McCauley read the minutes from the May 9 luncheon and the June 13 Executive Committee meeting. Virgie Wells gave the treasurers report and read a letter of thanks and acknowledgement from Ann Cox, Director of Hospice of the Bluegrass.

The Woman's Club will meet Friday, Oct. 10. Louise Jones from the Kentucky History Center in Frankfort will be the featured speaker.

Fling our cares away

GRACE NOTES

When we moved to Florida from California 23 years ago, we did so with only the things we could fit into two vehicles.

That meant getting rid of 15 years' worth of possessions to start over, which was both sad and exciting.

I especially hated parting with the coffee table my husband had accidentally autographed.

He tends to write hard and had been signing checks. After that, at a certain angle you could see a half-dozen "Barry Kennedy" indentations in the table top.

However, since we were moving into my late in-laws' fully furnished house in Florida, we didn't need to bring any of our things, like a personally autographed coffee table.

When we got to Florida, I took a mental inventory and was — how can I say this kindly? Let's just say, I and my mother-in-law, a lovely Italian lady from New York and of another long, long ago generation, had different tastes in décor.

And she liked lots of it.

At first my husband said we shouldn't change anything. But I just had too. So, I devised a plan to take things off the walls and table tops a little at a time and stow them in boxes in the garage.

Eventually, Barry caught on to what I was doing, and eventually he saw that "less is more" was actually a good thing.

However, boxing up his mother's stuff was one thing, while throwing it out was another. So, we tripped over boxes for a few months until Barry reached a point where he realized it was time to toss it.

That's when we discovered the county landfill, which, at that time, was a giant hole in the center of the county. Every Saturday we would load up the truck and fling Elvis plates and plastic canvas needlepoint butterflies into the open pit and watch seagulls scatter.

My girls still recall with fondness those Saturdays at the dump with their dad.

I like stuff but at this stage in my life I like getting rid of it even better. Clutter makes me extremely agitated inside.

But some people can't get rid of stuff. They're on TV all the time, "extreme hoarders.," keeping every newspaper, every empty plastic margarine tub, every piece of junk mail, every birthday card — everything that they touch or touches them.

One man couldn't pass up a thrift store. He owned about 2,000 golf clubs, although he never played, and he spent $200 a month for a storage unit just to house them.

His hoarding embarrassed his children, and his wife nearly left him. It was the thought of losing his family that caused him to eventually confront his problem.

The TV cameras documented his agonizing struggle to throw out just one thing. But once he did, everything about him changed — and then he threw out another thing and another.

Exhilarated, he became a new man, saying, "I don't know why I didn't do this sooner!" Everybody clapped.

I think many, maybe most, of us are hoarders. Not stuff like golf clubs or plastic tubs, but we hold onto guilt and shame and painful memories and our life strategies that no longer work.

In Billy Graham's devotional book, "Hope for Each Day," one of the entries urges: "Unload your distress," which Graham said is the French translation of the Apostle Peter's directive to "Cast all your cares upon (God), for he cares for you" (1 Peter 5:7).

Graham likened it to a trash truck emptying its load. The truck is useless if it carries its load of trash forever. He went on to write that likewise, we were never meant to be crushed under the weight of our cares.

But we are crushed. We carry stuff around that clutters the mind, weighs the soul and burdens the heart, kills us under its weight. It's like living in a hoarder's house. It makes us agitated and fretful. We suffocate, yet are often too fearful and unwilling to let go because we can't imagine a life that's better, even better than our current unbearable pain.

Graham posed the question: If God loved you enough to bear your sin upon his own shoulders, can't those same shoulders be trusted to bear the burden of lesser things?

The answer is, of course they can. When we give God our cares, he takes them and bears them — all of them, flinging them like junk into the pit at the dump. And we are left exhilarated, unfettered, free — and wondering why we hadn't done it sooner.

CALVARY ASSEMBLY OF GOD

I remember an old friend of my dad. His name was Bill. I miss him.

Years ago when I would visit my dad, the three of us would go to breakfast together. My dad and he would talk about the years that they worked together in air traffic control and the world war that they both served in.

Bill had such a great attitude. He told me about how he and a German woman forgave each other.

Bill met this woman who had a strong foreign accent. She told him that she was German. He then said, "You'll have to forgive me." She said, "Why?"

Then he proceeded to tell her that he was a pilot and dropped bombs on Germany. He went on to say that he forgave her.

When she asked why, he said, "Because my plane went down, and I was a P.O.W. for a year in Germany and because of it, lost one of my legs."

They became good friends.

I had breakfast with Bill before he died. He had a breathing problem that he would eventually die from. He told me that Hospice, a group that helps with this kind of thing, had already been coming to his apartment.

He knew that it would not be long before he died. We talked about the Lord and Heaven.

I then told Bill how I thought he had such a great attitude. I told him that I would love to see less fear and anxiety in those who were about to die. He said, "I'm looking forward to it."

If we know Jesus Christ as our Lord and Savior, then we are ready to meet Him.

Let's be sure we are ready, and forgive anyone we need to forgive.

The Bible says in Philippians 1:21, "For to me, to live is Christ, and to die is gain." Rather than dread death and have fear and anxiety, let's look forward to it. "For I consider that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us." Romans 8:18.

Top Vegetable Exhibitor. Alenah Jones, right, was presented with the Top Exhibitor in Horticulture and Plant Sciences award by Jessica Barnes, left, County Extension Agent for Horticulture during the Harrison County Fair. In order to win the top exhibitor for a certain area, the participant must abide by the guidelines laid out in the fair book for entering the exhibits and also win first place in the most categories out of all participants. Jones did just that, entering 12 different kinds of vegetables in their appropriate categories and won first place in nine of those categories. Jones was excited to see that the work she put into raising those vegetables paid off by earning her the 2014 Top Exhibitor in Horticulture and Plant Sciences at the Harrison County Fair.

Kentuckians urged to celebrate September Agritourism Month

Family-friendly fun on a Kentucky farm is right around the corner no matter where you live in the Commonwealth, Agriculture Commissioner James Comer said as he encouraged all Kentuckians to celebrate September Agritourism Month.

"Kentucky has a wide variety of farm destinations that showcase our unique food culture and our rich agricultural heritage," Comer said. "Take your family to a u-pick orchard, a fall festival, a pumpkin patch, a trail ride, or any of a number of other agritourism attractions that are affordable, enjoyable, and close to home."

Travelers may visit the official Kentucky agritourism website, www.kentuckyfarmsarefun.com, and search destinations by type or region. Agritourism operators may find links to valuable resources. The website is administered by the Kentucky Department of Agriculture. The department also publishes Agritourism Monthly, an electronic newsletter targeted to the needs of agritourism operators.

Amelia Wilson, the state's agritourism director, provides marketing assistance to Kentucky agritourism operators.

"At a time when most Kentuckians are generations removed from agriculture, these farm destinations provide an opportunity to restore that connection while providing entertainment and fresh Kentucky Proud foods that the whole family can enjoy," Comer said.

To find out more about Kentucky agritourism, contact Amelia Wilson at (502) 782-4136 or amelia.wilson@ky.gov or go to www.kentuckyfarmsarefun.com.

3M plant celebrating 45th anniversary in Cynthiana

3M is celebrating 45 years of manufacturing in Cynthiana. In 1969, 3M moved its first production equipment into a small tobacco warehouse on Church Street, close to the current plant location. Later that year, 3M purchased 52 acres and began construction on the current plant on New Lair Road.

The site started out with 13 3M employees and their families that moved to Cynthiana along with approximately 30 people hired to begin making copiers for the Duplicating Products Division of 3M. It has been a long path from copiers to Post-it™ Notes and packaging tape, but the local site is celebrating all who played a role in making the Cynthiana Plant one of 3M's best plants, ranked number one in Supply Chain and Productivity for 2013.

"We've not only been a viable manufacturer for 45 years in Cynthiana, but we continue to expand and grow our operations," said plant manager Colleen Emery. "We started with about 40 employees making copiers, and now we employ over 500 from the Central Bluegrass area. We have a lot of people to thank for their support over the years, but most importantly all of our retirees and current employees."

3M has continued to evolve and grow over the years. Hard goods and manual operations were replaced with more sophisticated processes. As copier manufacturing slowed, the site looked for additional operations. Repositionable notes was a new product line that was just being introduced. The Post-it™ Note business began to grow and Cynthiana was chosen as the site for this new product. Cynthiana was chosen to become a manufacturing site for tape and first produced tape products in 1989.

3M Cynthiana has become known as manufacturer of both Post-it™ Notes and Scotch™ Packaging Tape as the products grew in popularity. The diversity of products continued to grow when product line extensions were introduced, such as Easel, Greener Notes, and Supersticky for the repositionable notes line and retail tapes, Sure Start, and Greener Tape were added to the tape product line. The plant has more than doubled in size since it was purchased by 3M.

Emery credits much of the plant's success to the employees. "Today our employees rise to meet every challenge and do whatever it takes to meet the needs of our customers. We also have successful partnerships with local contractors and businesses that have spanned several decades. All of this has contributed to the success of 3M."

Cynthiana's first plant manager, Tom Boland, came here to start the new plant. After serving 20 years as plant manager, he still remains in Cynthiana. The same holds true for many of the first families that transferred to 3M in that first year of 1969. "It is a great place to live and many 3M employees transferred to Cynthiana during their careers and chose to stay. It is a great small town with an interesting history. Many find it enjoyable and hard to leave," said Emery.

"It's incredible to think back on all of the changes that have been made and all of the employees that have worked hard to bring us to this point at Cynthiana. We are also excited about what the future may bring. There have been challenges, but it's the relationships that are made with our co-workers that most people will always remember. There's no doubt our strength has always been our employees, and this continues today. The future is bright and we are already looking forward to our 50th anniversary in 2019," said Emery.

Always on the forefront of environmental performance, the plant is currently driving improvement of the 3M Corporate "Sustainability 2015" challenges, including significant improvements to energy efficiency, solid waste reduction, reduced air emissions, and expanded recycling. 3M Cynthiana supports our local community and partners with area schools in science and technology programs, such as 3M Ingenuity Grants and Project Lead the Way. Volunteerism is actively encouraged, and various grants support many local organizations and projects that include the Harrison County Senior Citizens, Harrison Memorial Hospital, and the Maysville Community College in Cynthiana.

Motorist alert: Fall harvest increases number of slow-moving vehicles on rural roadways

As harvest season gets underway across Kentucky, there is an increased likelihood that drivers will more frequently encounter slow-moving farm equipment on the roadways. The staff of Kentucky Farm Bureau urges motorists to slow down and share the road this fall, especially in celebration of National Farm Safety and Health Week, Sept. 21-27.

During this time of year farmers often need to move equipment from one field to another, but sometimes those transitions require their machinery to travel down or across public roads. When slow-moving vehicles enter areas normally traversed by fast-moving cars and trucks, accidents can occur. According to statistics from the Kentucky State Police, there were 210 collisions involving tractors and other farm equipment on Kentucky roadways in 2013. Of those collisions, 54 injuries and four fatalities resulted and the majority of the accidents (40 percent) were labeled by state police as the result of "inattention" – further proof that increased caution during harvest season is needed to prevent tragedy.

In an effort to help prevent accidents with slow-moving farm equipment this fall, Kentucky Farm Bureau offers the following suggestions for both motorists and farmers. While each roadway encounter is unique, a general sense of awareness and caution goes a long way in keeping everyone safe and preventing tragedy.

Tips for motorists:

• Slow down and pay attention to the road.

• Watch for road signs.

• Don't assume the farmer knows you are there.

• Keep your distance when following farm equipment.

• Use extreme caution when passing.

• Be patient with the farmer.

Tips for farmers:

• Make sure the slow-moving vehicle sign is visible.

• Never post a slow-moving vehicle sign on a mailbox or fence post.

• Keep flashing lights on.

• Stay to the right.

• Make intentions to turn well-known.

• Avoid encouraging a motorist to pass.

• When it is safe, pull over to allow traffic to pass.

BBB warns of persistent phone scam using IRS name

Calls threaten "legal action," "arrest"

Better Business Bureau® serving Central and Eastern Kentucky has received dozens of reports from consumers this week who received scam phone calls from persons alleging to be officers with the Internal Revenue Service (IRS).

A majority of the calls are hitting the Georgetown-Scott County area, but not exclusively. The calls are automated messages left for consumers on their voice mails or answering machines. The caller gives some official sounding title ("Officer" Smith) with the IRS and states that the call is in regard to a "serious legal matter" and that action will be taken unless the consumer returns the call. The caller leaves a phone number with a "202" area code, which is the area code for Washington D.C., in an effort to add credibility to the scam.

"These callers can sound convincing when they call. They may know a lot about you, and they alter the caller ID to make it look like the IRS is calling," said Jack Frank, BBB President and CEO. "They use fake names and bogus IRS identification badge numbers. If you don't answer, they often leave an urgent callback request. BBB urges consumers to ignore these calls."

Victims of this scam around the country fell for claims that they owed "back taxes" or "penalties" for late payments, and were tricked into buying pre-paid debit cards (such as Green Dot Moneypak cards) to pay the "fine" to avoid arrest. The money is unrecoverable.

IRS officials warn on their website that they do NOT do business in this manner. They offer these five signs of a scam using the IRS name. The IRS will never:

• Call you about taxes you owe without first mailing you an official notice.

• Demand that you pay taxes without giving you the opportunity to question or appeal the amount they say you owe.

• Require you to use a specific payment method for your taxes, such as a prepaid debit card.

• Ask for credit or debit card numbers over the phone.

• Threaten to bring in local police or other law enforcement to arrest you for not paying.

The IRS urges anyone with questions about any taxes they may owe to call them at 1-800-829-1040. The IRS also reminds taxpayers that they do not use unsolicited email, text messages or any social media to discuss your personal tax issues.

Consumers may report scams to BBB at (859) 259-1008 or 1-800-866-6668 or info@bluegrass.bbb.org.

It's not too late to register for Midterm classes

We find more and more that the good jobs require better education credentialing, and those who live in the Licking Valley have a golden opportunity to add to their college credits by taking classes right here at home. Maysville Community and Technical College/ Licking Valley Campus (MCTC/LVC) continues to work to find ways to offer classes that fit college work into busy people's schedules.

Midterm class offering is yet another option for busy adults who want to continue their education. If you missed the registration deadline in August there is still time to pick up a class or two. Mid-term classes give students an opportunity to complete class work in eight weeks as opposed to 16 weeks in a regular term. Nothing is sacrificed as far as the quality of the work offered. Students are given the option of compressing the time to cover the same material. It is less leisurely, but just as effective.

This mid-term the classes being offered include: Basic Blueprint Reading, CPR Healthcare Professionals, Criminal Procedures, Dosage Calculations, Foundations of Learning, History of Women in America, Fitness, Kentucky Medication Aide, Intro to Info Systems, Improved College Reading, and Reading for the Classroom.

The registration process that includes admission testing and an advising session and can be arranged quickly by calling the college at 859-234-8626 Extension 66400. Ask the assistant to connect you with the admissions officer, Lauren Mattox. She will help you set up a date and time for you to complete your registration process.

High school students are also eligible to take these classes as well and at a reduced tuition rate. For more information call or visit www.maysville.kctcs.edu.

Soccer Breds roll past Simon Kenton, lose at home to Montgomery

By Mike Aldridge, Sports writer

Brock Jenkins and Logan Wiley scored second-half goals as the Harrison County Thorobreds shook off the malaise of Saturday to get past Simon Kenton, 2-0, on the Pioneers' home field.

"I usually do not schedule Saturday games," noted Coach Nick Hill. "The players are out of their routine and generally start slow and this was no exception."

Hill said he felt like his team could have well been down by a couple of goals at the half instead of the 0-0 score.

In the second half, the Thorobreds communicated better and their passing was much more crisp and direct.

The defensive effort was more of a team effort instead of the back four doing the work.

The first goal of the game came about 20 minutes into the second half. Scott Moore sailed the ball across to the opposite side where Jesse Klapheke and Dillon Gasser played the ball to Jenkins for the score.

The second goal came as the Breds possessed the ball in the back and Wiley passed the ball to Klapheke who back heeled it back to the streaking Wiley who ripped it past the goal keeper for the 2-nil final score.

"This was a good win for us against a quality opponent who plays some really good competition," said Hill.

The Breds improved to 3-4-1 with the victory while Simon Kenton dropped to 4-5 for the season.

The Harrison County junior varsity lost 3-0 to the junior varsity Pioneers.

Montgomery County brought an 8-1 record to the Hilltop Tuesday and came away with a 9-2 win over the Thorobreds.

"It was a tale of two halves," commented Hill.

The Indians scored first with 31:22 still to play in the opening period on a breakaway goal.

Less than a minute later, the visiting squad made it 2-nil when the Thorobreds had a defensive break down and the Montgomery County player cut into the middle of the field for a score.

Harrison County would mount several scoring attempts but always seemed to be a player short of the number needed to score.

The Breds also missed on a couple of close shots in the middle part of the half.

Harrison County got on the board with 14:13 left in the half when Austin Short took a deep pass and split two defenders for a 2-1 score.

Montgomery County scored an apparent third goal at the end of the half but the officials ruled that time had expired before the shot.

Montgomery County scored four times before seven minutes had gone by in the second half.

The Thorobreds lost focus, picked up a couple of yellow cards, and played uninspired team soccer during this period and the remainder of the match.

Montgomery County led 9-1 before Gus Garrison scored on a penalty kick with six minutes left in the match.

The loss left the Breds with a 3-5-1 record for the year with home matches on Thursday with Lexington Catholic (5-5) and on Tuesday with Pendleton County (4-8).

The win sent Montgomery County home with a stellar 9-1 mark.

Some improvement in loss at Mason County Friday for Thorobreds

By Mike Aldridge, Sports writer

Despite the 49-7 defeat at the hands of the Mason County Royals (4-0) Friday night, some light could be seen at the end of the tunnel for Harrison County's football Thorobreds.

After falling behind 21-0 in the first period, the Breds played much more competitively for the rest of the game — especially in the second half.

Mason County's Rico Hill had a career night. The senior running back scored four times in the first half on running plays for the veteran Mason County line up.

The Thorobreds rallied in the second quarter late when Mark Taylor replaced Malcolm Walker at quarterback. Walker moved to wide receiver for the Thorobreds after going three for eight in passing in the early part of the game.

The blocking scheme became more manageable for the youthful offensive line with Taylor at the helm as he is a pocket passer rather than a roll out quarterback.

Harrison County scored with just under three minutes to play in the half on a pass from Taylor to Brian Davis that covered seven yards. Austin Jackson added the point after and the Breds trailed 28-7.

Harrison County suffered a serious blow on the scoring play however as junior defensive and offensive lineman Caleb Marshall was blind-sided by a late block and went down with an injury to his knee. Marshall had made some big defensive plays in the game and was sorely missed by the Thorobreds as the game continued.

After the Breds scored, Mason County marched the ball down the field. They were aided by a questionable pass interference call that kept the drive alive on a third down play.

The Royals scored on a Tyrian Fox four-yard run to make the score 35-7 with only 26 seconds left in the half.

The Breds threatened to score on the last play as Jovon Williams got behind the defense but Taylor's pass just slipped out of his grip as time expired.

Early in the second half Harrison County completed a couple of throws but could not move the ball. Kellon Newby had to punt back to the Royals.

In this next series, the Thorobreds were again hurt by injury as junior linebacker Tyler White went down with an ankle problem. It was obvious he was done for the night when he was seen leaving on crutches. Both his season, and Marshall's, is in doubt.

The win improved the Harrison County record to 8-9 on the year while Bracken County fell to 6-7.

Fillies lose battle with Camels, defeat Calvary Christian Monday night

By Mike Aldridge, Sports writer

"Though the score (3-0) may not show it the girls had their best and most organized defensive effort of the season, explained Coach Kevin Gaunce. Two balls for each team bounce a little differently and it's a completely different outcome."

The top 25 ranked Lady Camels struck early and often on offense with the Harrison County squad defending as a team and making the Lady Camels battle for all they got on the Harrison County end of the field. Ten minutes into the game Campbell County's midfielder made a nice move and kicked a left footed shot in from about 18 yards out for the first score. "We had her defended very well, noted Gaunce. But she is highly skilled and made a great play with her off foot." A foul against the Fillies about 10 minutes later set up Holly Schwarber for a free shot that hit the top bar of the goal and somehow

Again this week I want to add a comment about another subject before I get into the main idea. I am really tired of hearing about Ray Rice and especially from anyone who may sympathize with him. It was reported after the Ravens defeated the Steelers on Thursday night that the Ravens player wanted to give their support to Rice. It was bad enough for the Steelers to lose to the Ravens without hearing this report. How can the players support Rice? I bet their wives were all glad to know that the players were supporting a woman beater. There is no reason for support of any "man" who would hit a woman much less beat her until she is unconscious and then kicks at her to try to get her up. Rice should be in prison and I don't care if she is pressing charges or not. The cemetery is full of woman who didn't press charges on their wife beating significant other for some misplaced sense of loyalty or just out of fear. While Rice is entitle to his day in court let's have it already and quit reporting on him daily.

Things are tough right now for the Harrison County football program. The Thorobreds have lost four straight all but one by a large margin so the dooms day reporters are talking their poison. Well, that is going to happen but I hate to hear that it is coming from some parents. It was reported that parents asked for and were granted a meeting with Mr. Dotson. I understand that Mr. Dotson is obligated to meet with parents as they are tax payers and have a right to have their say. However, when it comes to coaching the football team I question the knowledge of either party to question what is going on daily at practice and in the games. If there is no abuse and I do not believe that there is then what could the discussion be about? Playing time or who plays what position are decisions that are best made by qualified people who have been to all practices and games not by over zealous parents or the superintendent. I doubt with his schedule that Mr. Dotson has time to go to practice and evaluate players and offensive schemes and defensive plans and I also doubt if parents are qualified to do so either. So what do we meet about? My son should be playing more or a different position? Parents have every right to be concerned with what goes on with their son or daughter but talking to the people directly involved seems to me to be the most prudent way to understand what is in question. Why not talk to the coach who has been to all of the practices and games?

Meeting with the superintendent aside another terrible practice is to sit or stand in the stands and yell things like "why doesn't the line block" or "we run the same play every time." Please be supportive and cheer on the players and the coaches. When a tackle is missed or a defensive back gets beat deep they already feel badly enough without parents or fans yelling derogatory remarks. I doubt if many of the people in the stands could set up an offense or defense that would do a better job. In fact, many of the comments about the officials indicate that some of our fans don't know much football at all.

Breds win second junior varsity game 20-0 over Rowan County

By Mike Aldridge, Sports writer

Dalton Moore, Malik Powell, and Logan Kellione each scored a touchdown and Tyler Price added an extra point as the Harrison County junior varsity defeated Rowan County 20-0 in Ingles Stadium Monday.

Former Harrison County coach Ray Graham brought his junior varsity the long distance to play the Thorobreds on this rainy Monday night.

The first quarter was scoreless but Harrison County got on the scoreboard with just under six minutes to play in the second quarter on Moore's short run up the middle for the score.

The score remained 6-0 at the half as each team's defense stiffened allowing little offensive movement.

Powell showed some hard running in his first possession of the second half for Harrison County as he was able to pick up some yardage behind a better offensive blocking effort.

His score came on a 20 yard run to make the score 12-0 with five minutes to play in the third quarter.

Moore then intercepted a pass near the end of the period and carried it back to the Rowan County three yard line. Kellione carried it in from there and Price scored on the two point conversion for the final 20-0 score.

The fourth quarter saw some mishandling of the ball and some missed tackles due to the rain slick conditions.

Jordan Ramirez recovered a fumble in the final stages of the game to complete a very good effort for the Harrison County defense.

The junior varsity is now 2-0 with a date at Bourbon County next Monday at 5:45.

Breds golfers finish eighth in a 20-team Montgomery tourney

Both teams play in Nicholas County Tuesday

By Mike Aldridge, Sports writer

The Harrison County Thorobreds golf team played in a 20-team tournament Saturday in Mt. Sterling finishing eighth in the large field.

"The finish was very good," noted Coach Jason Crisp. "Unfortunately, three of the teams that beat us are in our region."

Jackson County was the overall winner shooting just a few strokes better than runner up Mason County.

George Rogers Clark was third followed by Bourbon County, Grant County, Montgomery County and the Thorobreds.

Zach Norris of Jackson County was the medalist shooting an 18-hole total of 71 followed by Cody Kellen of Grant County who shot 73.

Will Hicks lead Harrison County with 81 followed by Jake Jones with 82, Peyton Browning with 89 and Reese Asher with 91.

Anthony Vascotto also participated for Harrison County shooting 95.

On Tuesday, the Fillies and the Thorobreds ventured to Nicholas County and faced the Blue Jackets and Lady Jackets.

The Breds also faced Fleming County in a triangle meet.

The Panthers were the winners of the boys match shooting 172 while Harrison County was second with 175 and Nicholas County finished third with 179.

Asher led the Thorobreds and was also the medalist of the day with a nine-hole total of 40. Jones was next for Harrison County with 43 while Hicks shot 45 and Vascotto had 47.

Kody Barrett and Jacob Vascotto also played but their scores did not count into the team total.

The Fillies defeated Nicholas County 217 to 237 in the nine-hole match.

Sarah Holland was the medalist as she led the Fillies with a 46 total.

Sarah Durbin was a close second with 47 followed by Anna Midden with 60 and Christian Wilson with 67.

Tori Aubrey and Kenzie Jones also played for the Fillies but were not in the team total.

The Fillies' next outing is scheduled for Wednesday when they travel to Paris to play Bourbon County.

The Thorobreds will be at the Cynthiana Country Club on Thursday playing host to the Mason County Royals.

Eighth grader Tyler Watts mess the successful catch for a touchdown against Bourbon County Middle School last week at Ingles Stadium.

Colts sweep pair from Bourbon County Thursday

By Mike Aldridge, Sports writer

The eighth grade Harrison County Middle School Colts won their first game of the season Thursday night as they edged the Bourbon County Colonels 22-14.

Defensive back/quarterback Quenton Pratt grabbed an errant pass thrown by Bourbon County's Dalen Landrum and carried the ball 20 yards for the winning score with just two seconds left in regulation. Pratt then ran the ball in for a two point conversion to make the final 22-14 score.

The Colts scored led at the half time break by a 6-0 score. This touchdown was made by Tyler Watts as he caught a pass from Pratt and went into the end zone for a 27 yard score.

Bourbon County came out inspired to start the second half and scored on a 40 yard run by Landrum with Ca'Marr Myers scoring the two point conversion for an 8-6 Colonel lead.

After Harrison County could not move the ball and punted, Landrum again scored, this time on a 63 yard scamper.

The point after try failed but Bourbon County held a 14-6 lead with five minutes to play in the third period.

Chase Blanton brought the Colts within two points with just under two minutes left in the quarter with a 35 yard touchdown run and Pratt hit Watts with a pass for the two point conversion to tie the score at 14 points each.

Both teams had drives in the fourth period but could not score until the interception by Pratt. The turnover gave the Colts their first win.

Defensively for the Colts Cody Howard was one of the leaders as he made some big tackles for losses and recovered a fumble to start the game.

Harrison County's record is now 1-4 as they prepare to travel to Georgetown next Thursday to face Scott Middle School.

Seventh grade prevails

The seventh grade game was hardly a contest as the Colts improved to 2-3 on the season with a 34-0 victory.

Harrison County began the game with an on-side kick which they recovered on the Bourbon County 45 yard line.

Five plays later Chris Abbott scored from 26 yards out for a 6-0 lead. The extra point try failed so the score remained 6-0 as the Colts again kicked to the Colonels.

Bourbon County failed to move the ball and the Breds took over on the Bourbon County 43. A Cameron Covington touchdown run of 40 yards was called back due to a penalty. Covington, however, scored four plays later on a short run to make the score 12-0.

Bourbon County turned the ball over again as the center snapped the ball over quarterback Peyton Henry's head and the Colts recovered on the Bourbon County 40 yard line.

Three plays later Colts quarterback Logan Cummins hit Covington with a 15 yard touchdown throw and this time the two point conversion was good. The Colts led 20-0 at the half.

The second half saw the Harrison County coaches substitute players while they continued to steam roll Bourbon County.

Covington scored his second touchdown with a seven yard run in the third period and Ladarius Conner scored the two point conversion for a 28-0 lead.

Later in the game the Colts marched down the field on a 12 play scoring drive with Conner making the final touchdown on a two yard run. Connor Marshall and Tyler Hudgins led a team effort on defense to shut out the Colonels.

The seventh grade squad, like the eighth, will travel next Thursday for a 6 p.m. meeting with Scott Middle School.

Fillies

bounced across the goal for a 2-0 half time lead. The Fillies had mounted some small quick hitting attacks but were unable to get one past the goal keeper for Campbell County.

The second half saw both Kelby Gaunce and Amelia Bolin hit the goal post with attempted scores that would have made a big difference in the game. Both girls were heavily defended but made moves to have a chance to score. Campbell County locked up the game with about five minutes left in the second half on a ball that was deflected multiple times in the box and finally tapped in on a rebound for the 3-0 final score. The loss leaves the Fillies with an even 3-3 record for the season while Campbell County improves to 8-3.

Monday night the Fillies battled the weather elements and the Calvary Christian Lady Cougars in Covington. The girls started slowly due to the wet field and sloppy conditions, so slowly in fact that Calvary Christian scored the first goal about 17 minutes into the match. "We have been talking about our mental approach to each game, noted Coach Kevin Gaunce. This start tonight was a reinforcement of what the message has been to the players."

The second half was much better as the back line of the Fillies, Mary Levi, Marie Bowen, Kayla Ford, and Chandlyr Puckett turned in their second good effort in a row to hold the Lady Cougars in check. This defense started the sequence of passes that led to the first goal for the Fillies with Kelby Gaunce knocking it in past the goal keeper. Six minutes later Morgan Puckett got loose on the right wing and bounced one off the defender to score the second goal. The game remained tight at 2-1 until two minutes were left when Gaunce and Amelia Bolin executed a perfect give and go through four defenders with Bolin putting the ball into the net. This score made the final 3-1 win for the Fillies. "We got down early but didn't panic and stayed poised for the win, concluded Coach Gaunce.

Harrison County's record is now 4-3-1 with the loss dropping Calvary Christian to 2-6-1.

The Fillies will be home for their next two matches as they do battle with Montgomery County (4-3-2) Wednesday Sept. 17 in the Athletic Complex and Paris (4-8) on the following Wednesday again on the Hilltop.

Breds

tled but the Royals took the ball down field on a 11 play 82 yard march that resulted in a touchdown pass from senior quarterback Bradley Boone to junior wide receiver Andrew Thacker.

This score made the tally 43-7 and the remainder of the game was played with a continuous clock.

The Breds continued to battle. They picked up five first downs while moving the ball both on the ground and through the air late in the game.

Harrison County's record is now 0-4 following the loss.

The Bourbon County Colonels will be on the Hilltop this Friday for the Thorobreds home opener. The Colonels sport a 2-1 record with a veteran line up that features several transfers and 15 seniors.

Game time will be 7:30 for this game.

With heartfelt gratitude...

The people at Whalen & Company wish to express their sincere appreciation to everyone who has supported Lauren and Adam Hill and their little girl, Story, during Story's illness and heart transplant surgery. Sherri Philpott, Whalen & Company customer service representative and Story's grandmother, is especially grateful - for all the prayers, well-wishes, cards, and donations that have been offered up for this young family in its time of greatest need. We all count ourselves so fortunate to live in a community that is so very faith-filled, supportive and generous.

While Story is making great progress, she still has a difficult road ahead, and your prayers are still much appreciated. In addition, friends from Central Christian Church have scheduled a benefit for Saturday, Sept. 27, for the Hill family. Proceeds from the carnival-like event will go to help the Hills with bills and expenses.

Anyone interested in sending cards to the Hills while they are at the hospital in Columbus may do so at: Story Hill, 700 Children's Drive 804D #29, Columbus, Ohio 43205

Again, thank you so much, and please continue praying for Story.

WHEREAS, KRS 381.77(4) declares certain acts relating to public nuisance unlawful and authorizes local governments to enact ordinances to enforce said statute; and

WHEREAS, the Harrison County Fiscal Court is desirous of implementing said enforcement mechanisms relating to noise nuisance;

WHEREAS, the Harrison County Fiscal Court further wishes to amend the enforcement mechanism to allow the Cynthiana-Harrison County-Berry Joint Planning & Zoning Commission staff to have enforcement powers over nuisances.

SECTION 1: DEFINITIONS,

For the purpose of this chapter, the following definitions shall apply unless the context clearly indicates or requires a different meaning.

"Automobile Parts". Any portion or parts of any motor-driven vehicle as detached from the vehicle as a whole.

"Dwelling". Any part of any building or its premises used as a place of residence or habitation or for sleeping by any person.

"Inoperative Condition". Unable to move under its own power due to defective or missing parts, and which has remained in such condition for a period of not less than ten (10) consecutive days.

"Motor Vehicle". Any style or type of motor-driven vehicle used for the conveyance of persons or property.

"Nuisance". Public nuisance-that activity which arises from unreasonable, unwarranted or unlawful use by a person of his own property or property under his control, working obstruction or injury to the public, and producing such material annoyance and discomfort that the law will presume resulting damage.

County shall have a lien against the property for the reasonable value of labor and materials used in removing/abating the nuisance. The affidavit of the County Attorney shall constitute prima facie evidence of the amount of the lien and the regularity of the proceedings pursuant to KRS 381.770 and this section, and shall be recorded in the Office of the County Clerk. The lien shall be notice to all persons from the time of its recording and shall bear interest at the rate established by the County thereafter until paid. The lien created shall take precedence over all other subsequent liens, except state, county, city and school board taxes, and may be enforced by judicial proceeding. In addition to this remedy or any other remedy authorized by law, the owner of a property upon which a lien has been attached pursuant to this Section shall be personally liable for the amount of the lien, including all interest, civil penalties, and other charges; and the County may bring a civil action against the owner and shall have the same remedies as provided for the recovery of a debt owed.

SECTION 5. NUISANCE CREATED BY OTHERS.

For the purpose of this chapter, it shall not be essential that the nuisance be created or contributed to by the owner, occupant, or person having control or management of the premises, but merely that the nuisance be created or contributed to by licensees, invitees, guests, or other persons for whose conduct the owner or operator is responsible, or by persons for whose conduct the owner or operator is not responsible, but by the exercise of reasonable care ought to have become aware of.

SECTION 6. PENALTY.

Whoever violates any provision of this chapter shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined no less than $25.00 and not more than $500.00 for each offense. Each day's continued violation shall constitute a separate offense.
